note from dr. matthys

Graduates, Everyone... Lead Thyself

As we are full steam ahead into graduation season, one thing that I wish someone had helped me understand was how important it is to understand my own shortcomings. Leading other people, being a leader, or wanting to be a leader cannot happen without knowing how to lead thyself. What does that mean? I recently had some clarity around this topic during a leadership conference I attended.

As many of you know, I follow Andy Stanley for all things leadership and personal betterment. Andy makes mention of a fact we don't always consider. You and I are both at the center of our worst decisions. The ones we regret. The ones we wish we hadn't made. We are always there. So, does this matter? I would argue yes. Andy states 3 things to consider...

Q. Sunscreen... What? Who? And Why?

- A. We are always looking to new and innovative ways to protect our skin and our environment and researchers may have discovered both. Recently, algae has been discovered to be a potential new sun protection product. Using microorganisms and chitosan, algae was discovered to protect against ultraviolet A and B (UVA and UVB) rays as a natural sunscreen option. The algae occurs as a biocompatible product which stood up well with heat and light. Plus, it is not dangerous for the environment. These findings, while years away from department stores, are still exciting.

So for now, look for a SPF 30 broad spectrum sunscreen because this covers both UVA and UVB rays. Zinc oxide and titanium dioxide are two of our favorite sunscreen ingredients, but anything that prevents a burn is great in a pinch. One should wear sunscreen every day, no matter what. Just like brushing your teeth or wearing a seatbelt. Only 14.3 % of men and 29.9% of women wear sunscreen on their face and exposed skin, so we have some work to do. Let's start today!

FAIR & FASHIONABLE™

SKIN CANCER IS NEVER IN STYLE™

SKIP THE TAN.

It's prom and graduation season. While teens are more enthralled than ever with event-tanning, we are seeing alarming rates of skin cancer in 15–24 year olds. They believe that just a few sessions in a tanning bed is not risky. However, the statistics say it best: People who first use a tanning bed before age 35 increase their risk for melanoma by 75 percent!

So please...if you have a teen in your home or in your life, encourage them to embrace their natural skin tone.

Let them know that skin cancer is never in style! If they absolutely can't stand the thought of not having a tan, tanning creams or spray tanning can suffice for special events. #fairandfashionable

the inspiration

Eclipse Rx® was inspired and developed by Dr. Brian Matthys, DO, Board-Certified Dermatologist, Founder and Chief Medical Officer of Sunflower Dermatology and Medical Day Spa.

As a young boy growing up in Nebraska, Dr. Matthys experienced a near drowning experience one winter when he slipped through the ice on a frozen pond. This scare spurred him to become a skilled swimmer, lifeguard and water safety expert later in his teens.

As a lifeguard Brian spent much of his time in the sun. He became very familiar with the risks of sunburn caused by over exposure to the sun's UVA and UVB rays. As a result, Brian developed his own creative ways to "avoid the burn". Fast forward to today and you will find Dr. Matthys on a mission to help people protect their skin. With 20-plus years in practice, Dr. Matthys has seen way too many cases of skin cancer.

In 2013, with the increasing availability of innovative technology and micro UV sensing devices, Dr. Matthys began exploring ways to develop a wearable technology to help individuals be more aware of the amount of sun they are exposed to throughout the day. The result, Eclipse Rx, the first wearable sun monitoring device that is ironically powered by the sun! The Eclipse Rx device is water resistant with a sleek high tech unisex design and pairs/syncs with its own innovative mobile app.

Visit EclipseRx.com to learn more and sign up to receive an email when Eclipse Rx is available to purchase.

"Being gently reminded of over exposure to the sun can encourage change in behavior and positive change leads to improved health and happiness."

The first suggestion is don't lie to yourself. We are the best at deceiving ourselves, so even when it makes you feel bad, just tell yourself the truth. The second idea to consider is to prioritize what is most important to you rather than what you want now. This is an ongoing dilemma, but always worth remembering. Finally, the third consideration is to learn from others and not to lead yourself by yourself. We should pick the people we spend time with based upon common values versus common interests. This requires extra time and energy, however our friends can make or break us. With those three points of consideration in place, Andy suggests we should then routinely ask ourselves this question, "Given my future hopes and dreams, what is the wise thing to do?" BOOM. What a question! He reminds us and I remind you, life is a trip with a destination. Don't you want to be in the driver seat? You can't lead yourself without understanding your core beliefs. Best of luck. GO!
